THE COST OF THE MANCHESTER ALLIANCE

THE DUKE AND DUCHESS OF MANCHESTER.

If Eugene Zimmerman of Cincinnati shall at any time in the future write a book, or deliver a lecture, or even read a club paper on what he knows about aristocratic alliances, he will in all probability impart invaluable information to all other American fathers who are thinking of buying vicounts, earls, marquises, or dukes for their daughters.

The commercial proposition involved in such transactions is similar in many respects to that which confronts the man who has been presented with a white elephant. That is to say, aside from whatever it may have cost to wipe out the original obligation, there is always the fixed charge for maintenance. One is by no means relieved of responsibility when one buys a duke for one's daughter, for the duke is not something that can be laid aside when not in actual use and taken out only when the family feels like exhibiting him. Like a bankrupt railroad in the hands of a receiver, he has got to be "kept up" even at a loss. No family that has once entered into a ducal alliance could afford to have the duke and his duchess riding around in second-class railroad coaches, stopping at second-class hotels, or wearing second-class clothes.

Nothing could be more humiliating, for example, than to have a neighbor drop in on an evening and say, "I met your Duke this morning and lent him half a dollar to get a shave and a cup of coffee;" or, "By the way, I have an old suit, not much worn, which I think would fit your Duke. It will be an improvement on the shabby duds I saw him in today;" or, "When can you let me have the $10 I put up for the board of your Duke and Duchess? I wouldn't mention it only I need the money."

This sort of thing would not do at all. No man in moderate circumstances, Mr. Zimmerman would not doubt tell us, should buy a duke for his daughter. It is a good deal like buying an automobile—or owning a summer home. The Duke must be constantly kept in repair. He has got to be looked after as carefully as a race horse, and to look after him properly the father of the Duchess should be able to employ and pay a regular force of skilled attendants.

So far as the peace of mind of the visitor is concerned, the upkeep of a duke is as trying as the staying off of a mortgage. Both are alike in the sense that they are constantly coming due. The father of the Duchess says to hisself, "Well, I have no payments to meet this month, thank my star!" and just then a telegram arrives which informs him that the Duke and the Duchess are being held for their hotel bill at some summer or winter resort.

It would be an act of kindness to his fellow millionaires if Mr. Zimmerman would make a clean breast of the whole thing and tell them just what it costs him to maintain the splendid Manchester alliance. We believe that he could show by figures that the first thing to be done by the father who thinks of buying a duke is to buy a steamship line, a trunk railroad or two, a fashionable hotel in every place of importance, equip a dry goods store, with branches, establish a belt line of pawn offices, invest in a few castles, and arrange his financial affairs so that all drafts from the Duke will be honored whether he is feeling blue or buoyant.

The father who takes these precautions will not be troubled with symptoms of heart failure every time the door bell rings, and he may now and then retire at night with the conviction that he will not have to leave his bed before morning in order to rescue the family duke from the clutches of a constable.—Chicago Inter-Ocean.

HOTEL SALE CONFIRMED.

Judge Robinson yesterday signed an order confirming the sale of the property of the Royal Hawaiian Hotel Co., Ltd., on the report of M. T. Simonton, administrator. David Dayton, in the acute a good and sufficient deed to the purchaser, Hawaiian Trust Co., Ltd. The Fisher, Ables Co., Ltd., conducted the auction sale and the price was $85,000. A deficiency judgment for $65,191.15 against the defendant company was ordered to be entered. The commissioner was allowed a fee of $1250. His proceedings in the matter were highly commended by the court and counsel on both sides.

HEIRS GET INSURANCE.

An order of final distribution, approving accounts and discharging administrator, David Dayton, in the matter of the estate of A. B. Scrimgeour, deceased, was made yesterday by Judge Robinson. It is decided that the sum of $2955 collected from the Western Masons' Mutual Life Association constitutes no part of the estate of deceased, and ordered that the said sum be paid to Allan R. Scrimgeour and Harold A. Scrimgeour, the legal heirs and next of kin of deceased.

 heard Christ's voice and looking up into his face cried out, 'My Lord and my God.' Then it was all right. He remembered the promise that He would rise again and lost his doubt and bitterness.

"I do not wish to be hard on those who have money, but if a man so wraps himself up on business that he has no time to attend to the welfare of his soul he has sold out too cheaply. If a young woman is interested in religious work and the welfare of her fellow beings and when she becomes prosperous, either through marriage or independently forgets her Master's work, she has sold out cheaply—too cheaply.

"I can find you tens of thousands of men who believe that God will take them to heaven when they die, but don't believe that he will give them bread while they live. They sing 'That will be Glory' in future but they haven't got faith in the ability of their God to take care of them here on earth.

"Through all our doubtings, through all our trials and troubles and disappointments through all our dangers, may we reach the place that Thomas reached when he was able to cry 'My Lord and my God.'"

MEHEULA IS FOUND NOT GUILTY

JURY ACQUITS HIM IN SECOND TRIAL AND HE IS DISCHARGED.

Solomon Meheula was found not guilty of gross theft by the jury in Judge De Bolt's court yesterday afternoon. The jurors retired at about 7 o'clock and found a verdict in about two hours. The defendant was immediately discharged. C. W. Ashford defended the case and W. S. Fleming prosecuted.

Meheula was charged with having cheated the Territory out of $150, the amount of a voucher and warrant drawn in the legislature of 1903; when Meheula was clerk of the House, for copies of the Hawaiian civil and penal laws, the copies never having been purchased by him as was alleged. He was tried at the last term of court and the jury disagreed.
